

The Cuban and Puerto Rican Vote in Florida

Florida will once again be a swing state in the 2020 presidential election, and the Hispanic vote in the state will be more critical than ever before.

Historically, Cuban-Americans have tended to vote Republican while Puerto Ricans have tended to vote for Democrats.

But do these trends still hold true, particularly in Florida?

Do Cuban-Americans under 40 years of age vote the same as their parents and grandparents? Are the new wave of Puerto Ricans who migrated to Florida after Hurricane Maria more conservative than other Puerto Ricans throughout the country?

Join us for this lecture as Dr. Jorge Duany, one of the leading experts on the Cuban and Puerto Rican diaspora, explore these issues and shares the latest polling data on these Latino groups.

Presenter: Dr. Jorge Duany, Director of the Cuban Research Institute, Florida International University

Date: Thursday, October 8th

Time: 3:30pm
